Lately, it seems that everybody is reminding me that this is my second-to-last finals season before graduation. Despite hearing it at least twice a week (including last night) I think it is hard to process that, as a senior graduating in May, next semester is my last here. As someone who has endured six grueling finals seasons, I have a few more pieces of advice before we wrap the newsletter until next semester. One, if you have found your favorite study spot, go there every day until your last exam. Some percentage of your studying should be done now, but there are times where cramming in the last week makes a major difference. Two, if you have essays or projects in place of exams, schedule out what you intend to do every day leading up to the due date. For example, I have to review, outline, draft, draft, and revise over the next five days on an assignment. And finally, I know that Winter Break is so close, but give it your all right now because multiple weeks to recharge await you on the not-so-distant horizon. Best of luck with finals, everybody. You've got this!

Give yourself a much-needed break with some of our announcements. Help address the world's issues from an important perspective next semester by applying for the 1.5 credit seminar: “Futures: Another World Is Possible.” Treat your mental health this finals season by attending the upcoming De-Stress the Night Away Event. Want to serve alongside your peers, gain valuable experience, and receive a $1000/semester stipend? Apply to be an Honors Peer Leader.

De-Stress the Night Away Event
It's time: after weeks of prep, we're finally approaching the start of finals. When it comes to exam seasons like this, the most important thing is your health. The Peer Mentor Program is hosting its next event of the semester, De-stress the Night Away to help keep your mind, body, and soul in check. Come out to the Busch Student Center Multipurpose Room B today, Dec 13 at 8 pm EST for a night of Just Dance, hot chocolate, and holiday crafts! Be sure to wear your ugly holiday sweaters!

Futures: Another World is Possible Seminar App is OPEN
The Institute for Research on Women invites all undergraduates to apply to its spring 2022 learning community, "Futures: Another World Is Possible." This in-person, 1.5 credit seminar considers the overwhelming problems facing the planet (from climate change and global pandemics to ongoing racial violence and political polarization), and imagines alternative possibilities for the future. The application can be found here.

Honors Peer Leader App is OPEN!
College Ave (Brett), Busch (McCormick Suites), and Livi (Lynton Towers) are looking for Honors Peer Leaders in their respective areas for the '22-'23 academic year. The SASHP Honors Peer Leader (HPL) serves alongside their peers by designing, promoting, and executing engaging academic and co-curricular programs that aim to build community and collaboration. This position offers students a stipend of $1000 dollars at the end of every semester. Interested students can apply here.
