Welcome back, everyone! I hope you all had a great spring break. For me personally, the latter half was spent waiting in line in Florida on a trip to some of the parks there. Considering the wait times for some of the stuff, the trip was totally a lesson in patience after a pandemic of not having to wait much for anything. Anyway, patience is something that we should all give ourselves in the coming weeks as we transition out of break mentality and into students preparing for finals mode. So, as you review material and get back in the flow of things, be kind to yourself and take the time.

Patiently wait for some of these upcoming events/announcements. Get inspired by one of the best at the upcoming Jennifer Mack-Watkins Artist Talk. Potential applicants can learn all about the ins and outs of the Peer Mentor Program at the upcoming Get The Scoop Event. Speaking of, help guide the next generation of freshmen by applying to be an SASHP Peer Mentor. Know a thing or two about Rutgers? Showcase your knowledge at the SASHP Family Feud Event! Try out the BRAND NEW capstone opportunity: Career Lab.

Warm Regards,
Justin Confalone
Your newsletter editor
Jennifer Mack-Watkins Artist Talk
Stop by Zimmerli Art Museum to hear from the incredible Jennifer Mack-Watkins, whose work powerfully blends Japanese woodblock printing techniques, known as mokuhanga, and her culturally rich southern roots. Her work investigates societal constructs that can leave women feeling isolated and definitions of femininity based on widely-held notions of beauty and cultural norms. This great opportunity to see an artist in action takes place this Thurs, March 24 at 4 pm EST in the Zimmerli Art Museum. Register here.

Get The Scoop Info Session
Those interested in learning more about applying to be a '22-'23 Peer Mentor and PM Programming Board leader should stop by the upcoming Get The Scoop Event. In addition to ice cream with all your favorite toppings, attendees will hear from current members of the PM Programming Board members as they recount their experiences. This event takes place this Wed, Mar 23 at 8:30 pm in the LSC Gathering Lounge.

Peer Mentor Application
I'm sure many SASHP students remember meeting their Peer Mentors during their first year at Rutgers. Well, now’s your chance to be the one on the sending end. Peer Mentors provide life advice, welcome mentees into the college culture, and provide support however else they can. Those interested in being the next group of mentors can apply here by Sun, Mar 27.
SASHP Family Feud Event
And the survey says... stop by the upcoming SASHP Family Feud Event! Flex your knowledge of Rutgers and the SASHP by working with your team of five to score more points than the opponents and win! This head-to-head competition takes place on Thurs, Mar 24 at 7 pm in a TBD location. Get a group together and have one member register the team here for the most up-to-date information.

Career Lab Information
Rising seniors thinking about their capstone should consider Career Lab, a brand new Option E capstone opportunity for SASHP students. Career Lab will host two projects at Johnson & Johnson in New Brunswick. In fall 2022, the two Career Lab Scholars will be on-site at J&J for 9-10 hours per week, earning three internship credits and a $2000 award upon successful completion of project deliverables. In spring 2023, the scholars will then undertake a 3-credit independent study with a Rutgers faculty member to examine a scholarly question that emerges from the project. They will present their findings in a capstone report and short oral presentations at both Rutgers and J&J. Applications are due Fri, Mar 25. For more info, contact Dean Keeton (honorsdean@sas.rutgers.edu).