Hello, Spring

Rutgers SASHP Newsletter

Wednesday, March 20, 2024

Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

Spring has finally begun! It’s still a bit chilly outside, but it’s nice to see flowers on the trees and to be able to wear lighter clothing again. My trench coats are finally seeing the light of day. It’s this weather that makes me want to walk everywhere around campus (I have to get my daily steps in), but my legs would not thank me for that. As much as I love winter, warm drinks, and layered outfits, I am eager to welcome the sunnier days of spring. Not looking forward to the rain though.

Warmer weather means that there are many amazing events to attend and less excuses not to go! Last call for Peer Mentor applications! Attend the Rutgers Service Fair. Prepare with an LSAT Mock Exam. Check out the Rutgers Diabetes Link. Participate in the Notice Nature Research Study. Save the date for the 2024 SAS Interdisciplinary Research Conference.

Warmest regards,
Halima Niazi
Your Newsletter Editor

IN THIS ISSUE:

'24-'25 Honors Peer Mentor Applications
Rutgers Service Fair
2024 SAS Interdisciplinary Research Conference
Rutgers Diabetes Link
Notice Nature Research Study
LSAT Mock Exam
EVENTS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

'24-'25 Honors Peer Mentor Applications

The '24-'25 Honors Peer Mentor applications are now open and will run this Sunday, Mar. 24. All SASHP students in good standing are encouraged to volunteer and be matched to an incoming honors student. Peer Mentors will offer guidance and advice and be invited to exclusive PMP events throughout the year. Follow @hpmentor to learn more! Additionally, there are a few seats open to join the PMP Programming Board, which works to create PMP events throughout the year. Apply here.

Rutgers Service Fair

Rutgers is hosting its first-ever service-focused career fair in the government service and non-profit sector! The event will take place on Mar. 21 @ 3-6 PM at College Ave Student Center. Register here to attend and take advantage of the opportunity to connect with Federal agencies and employers.

2024 SAS Interdisciplinary Research Conference

The 2024 SAS Interdisciplinary Research Conference will be taking place on Friday, Apr. 19 from 10 AM to 3 PM at the Livingston Student Center. The conference features student presentations of 2023-2024 Interdisciplinary Honors Theses, the Interdisciplinary Research Teams, and SASHP Career Lab capstone projects. Come out to support other students, appreciate the culmination of their work, and see examples of other research theses and projects.
EVENTS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Rutgers Diabetes Link

The Rutgers Diabetes Link (RUDL) is an organization on campus that serves to educate the New Brunswick community about diabetes management and prevention and function as a support group for all of our members and prospective students affected by diabetes. Get involved here. Also follow their Instagram @rutgersdiabeteslink.

Notice Nature Research Study

The Rutgers Arts in Health Research Lab is currently recruiting undergraduate and graduate students to participate in the Notice Nature Study. Students will enjoy being out in nature and will journal their observations using light writing and sketching/drawing for 30 minutes per week, 3 weeks in a row. Then, they will fill our mood surveys to reflect. Sign up for sessions here. Those who complete all three sessions will receive an art kit and a $25 gift card!

LSAT Mock Exam

The Rutgers Student Food Pantry and Continuing Studies Program present a FREE in-person mock exam to prepare for the LSAT on Apr. 6. Also, consider attending an LSAT test prep course, either in-person or online, or an LSAT one-hour strategy meeting. Register here. Additionally, there are various prep courses for the GRE, GMAT, and Praxis, which you can register for here.