What's a shamus?

RUTGERS SASHP NEWSLETTER

Monday, February 5, 2018
Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

You've been called in to see a client. He's wealthy, he's old, but his daughters have gotten caught up in some mischief. He's trusting you to handle this with discretion and you need the money. You run into one daughter on the way in and one on the way out. Both will be trouble. You know that before either says a word. Still, you have a job to do and you'll get it done whether they help you or not. Because private eyes don't just exist in books and they aren't just snooping around hotel corners. They handle things and you're the best in the biz.

If you're struggling to find some leads, we've got a few places to start. The screening of The Great Debaters tomorrow is supposed to be an intimate affair, maybe a few suspects might arrive. Or try one of the three Artists' Collective events this week in case they're covering for something. Plan ahead to meet with bigwigs and score all the secrets at Hoops with Dean Davis. Beef up your knowledge of other suspects by reading our Alumni and Senior Spotlights. And, of course, consult with others caught up in society's underbelly at the SASHP Winter Formal: tickets are now available. And if, between all that, you have trouble finding time to read up on your research or classwork, be sure to look at Benedict's advice on the SASHP Blog.

In the meantime, whether you're back at square one or caught in the tangles of a conspiracy, be sure to keep your eyes open, your fedoras ready, and your drinks in a glass.

Shake up your business and pour it out. I don't have all day,
Kim Peterman
Student Director of Honors Media

Book a Study Room Now
Think you and your friends will need a reserved, quiet place to study or work on a group project this semester? Book a study room now before space runs out. Make reservations at https://www.libraries.rutgers.edu/group_study_rooms

Apply to be H.I.P.ster here.
The Great Debaters
Need an event for Honors Colloquium? Then head out to this movie night. Watch and discuss the film The Great Debaters, which centers on the debate team from Wiley College that participated in the first interracial collegiate debate with Harvard. Film shows at 2:45 - 4:45 PM at the Parlor at 35 College Ave.

Artists's Collective Events
Join the Artists' Collective this week at their three events: a Writing Workshop, a dinner, and Art Afternoon. The first is Tuesday at 8-10PM, the second Wednesday at 6:30-8PM, and the last Thursday at 3-5PM. Find out more on their Facebook page here.

Hoops with Dean Davis
Get to know the Honors Program Director while watching basketball! Sit with Dean Davis in the student section at RU women's basketball game against Iowa on February 21 at 7PM in the RAC. Save your seat at this link.
See Our Spotlights!

Learn about Honors Program students old and new with our Alumni and Senior Spotlights. Learn about Michael Lazaropoulos's journey to entering an MD/Ph.D. program at Temple University by clicking here. Additionally, discover graduating Senior Elise Petronzio's four years of self-discovery with the help of RU and SASHP by clicking on the photo. Stay up-to-date by following our Facebook page.

Solve the mystery of your heart

Go undercover, investigate your leads, and find that dame or detective that's so wrong they're right for you at our third annual Winter Formal on February 17 from 6:30-10:30PM. Find out more about Detective McGuilicuty's investigation into the formal by clicking the link to the trailer on the picture. Learn more about the event and how to purchase tickets by clicking here.
Hop Across the Pond

Need something to do this summer? Join Honors Program Writer in Residence Paul Blaney for over two weeks in the United Kingdom, walking through the British countryside, visiting places like the Globe Theater and more! The trip is part of a 3-credit creative writing course, which features pre-and post-trip work including readings, watching movies, and writing. To take advantage of this opportunity, apply now! Applications are available here and include a personal statement and recommendation letter. Deadline to apply is March 1.

Advising Tip of The Week

Still searching for just the right major? Then visit your Honors Dean or the Office of Academic Services to get advice on that and any other academic concerns you may have. If you go now, before the pre-registration rush, you'll have more appointment flexibility.
