Monday, Sept 10, 2018

Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

Congratulations! You’ve survived your first week of classes. The first few days of figuring out which buildings you meet in and when you’ll have time for food breaks are behind you. I’m sure you’ve already decided which subjects you’re excited to learn about and which professors will brighten your day. A new semester brings a new opportunity to show off your best self. Ultimately, you’re here because you want to be here. Keep moving forward—your passion and desire for knowledge will guide the way.

Celebrate the new year by attending a party at Passion Puddle. Stop by the introductory meeting of READ: The Rutgers Book Club for eccentric book recommendations. Send us your events, and your organization might just get featured in the next newsletter. Take advantage of our renowned honors course offerings for an eye-opening experience. Gain great leadership skills by applying to be a SASHP one-on-one tutor.

Before you know it, it’ll be cold enough for long sleeves and we’ll be halfway through the semester. Take time for the little joys in life, brought to you by SASHP.

With warmest regards,
Julianna Rossano
Student Director of Honors Media
Party at the Puddle!
Celebrate surviving your first week of classes by attending a party at Passion Puddle, hosted by RUPA! There will be food trucks, terrarium crafts, and a screening of Avengers: Infinity Wars. Bring a friend and take pictures at their photo booth. Sept 12, 5 to 10 PM at Passion Puddle on Cook/Douglass Campus.

READ: The Rutgers Book Club
Do you read for fun? Join READ: The Rutgers Book Club for an introductory meeting. There will be bookish ice breaker questions as well as a spirited discussion about various books attendees have read over the summer. Bring novel suggestions: perhaps Thi Bui’s The Best We Could Do? Sept 11, 8 PM in the basement of the Rutgers Art Library on College Ave.
Share Your Event!

Is your club, program or organization holding an event? Tell us about it and you might see it in our next newsletter. We love to hear about what our honors students are organizing! Send your news to sashp.nl@gmail.com.

Honors Course Offerings

Stay on track by enrolling in an honors seminar. Challenge yourself to take an interdisciplinary course with one of our outstanding faculty members and learn new ways of examining a subject. With about fifteen students per class, seminars also allow an opportunity to get to know other students in the honors program. Who knows, you might find a new passion. Visit sashonors.rutgers.edu for a list fall 2018 courses and check the Schedule of Classes to see which ones still have a seat just for you!
SASHP One-on-One Tutor Application

In case you missed it last semester, apply to be a SASHP one-on-one tutor! Gain great leadership experience to add to your resume and improve your critical thinking by becoming a SASHP one-on-one tutor! Volunteer your time and knowledge to all Rutgers University students. All SASHP students in good academic standing who have completed at least one semester at Rutgers are invited to apply. Application deadline is Friday, Sept 14, 2018 by 9 AM. Contact Dorene Pardun at dpardun@sas.rutgers.edu with questions. Apply at https://goo.gl/forms/IToBM7skcakb5tqh2.

Advising Tip of the Week

If you’re taking a bus to a class that starts around 5 or 6 PM, account for rush hour traffic and leave early. Don’t forget to thank your bus driver!