Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

Good morning, and happy Monday! Waking up for early-morning Monday classes is one of the harder things I've done at Rutgers. But sometimes, they're necessary. Here are a few tips for making your Mondays more fun: save a step in your routine by laying out an outfit the night before. Have something special for lunch! If you're eating at a dining hall, treat yourself to your favorite dish or dessert. Finally, if you can manage, plan something fun to do after class ends. Watch an episode of your favorite show or join a club that meets Monday nights. Pretty soon, you'll be excited for Mondays to roll around!

Here are some fun events coming up this week. Don't be scared about registering for classes! Join the PLIM for a web-reg info session and Halloween movie night. Seniors: learn about resources for life beyond Rutgers at the Senior Academic Meeting. Looking for an internship? Attend an AACC Junior Internship Program session. If you have questions about advising, ask your Honors advising dean or stop by drop-in advising with Dean Sadowsky and Dean Kim-Lee. Join the Artists Collective for a Halloween Acting and Arts Workshop. Catch an award-winning film at the Jameson movie night! Join RUCCS for the talk "Information processing and cross-linguistic universals." Are you dressing up for Halloween this year? Submit a photo of your costume to the Honors Peer Mentors for their costume contest. Gain valuable career experience by applying to the Road to Industry Mentoring Programs. Apply for two awesome the Eagleton Institute of Politics opportunities.

From all of us here at the SASHP, enjoy the day!

With warmest regards,
Julianna Rossano
Student Director of Honors Media
