Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

OOne of my favorite things about Rutgers is that a wide range of events are always happening. Although I love running the Big Chill and seeing the bedraces, I find that I experience the same amount of fun and excitement at some of the smaller events. When I really stop to consider it, painting in the lounge of my apartment building, talking about books at the summer reading selection committee, and hearing authors speak during the Writers at Rutgers series are some of my favorite memories of fall semester. I constantly find myself enjoying the little things.

Here are some little things for you to enjoy this week. Join RU global for a screening of the documentary A Towering Task: The Story of the Peace Corps. Showcase your talents at the Artists Collective Coffeehouse. Check out the Climate Change Symposium to gain valuable insight into a current event. Meet other SASHP scientists at the Scientist Social with Dean Keeton. Juniors: get more information about your capstone at your class academic meeting. Join the Eagleton Institute of Politics for the workshop Where Science, Innovation, and Civic Engagement Meet. Interested in language and cognition? Attend the lecture “Robust Speech Processing in Human Auditory Cortex.” Get involved in the SASHP by applying for a spot on our SASHP Video Production Team. If you have a passion for serving, apply for the Key into Public Service Scholarship.

From all of us here at the SASHP, enjoy the day!

With warmest regards,

Julianna Rossano
Student Director of Honors Media

Junior Academic Meeting

Juniors: Got questions about the Honors capstone requirement? Want to check in with an advising dean about your plans? Want some Honors swag? The JAM is one of the best ways for juniors to learn about the many ways they can complete their capstone in the SASHP and to learn from current seniors who are right in the middle of researching an honors thesis or other capstone project. Nov 22, 1:15 - 2:45 PM in Tillet Hall Rm 242, Livingston Campus.

Where Science, Innovation, and Civic Engagement Meet

The Eagleton Institute of Politics will be hosting the workshop Where Science, Innovation, and Civic Engagement Meet. Join Beth Noveck, Ph.D., NJ’s first chief innovation officer, to learn about her role and how scientists, crowdsourcing, and open government can help solve public problems. Visit eagleton.rutgers.edu/events for more information and to RSVP. Nov 22, 11 AM at Eagleton Institute of Politics, Douglass Campus.

“Robust Speech Processing in Human Auditory Cortex”

The RU Center for Cognitive Science invites you to attend the lecture “Robust Speech Processing in Human Auditory Cortex,” hosted by associate professor of Electrical Engineering at Columbia University Nima Mesgarani. He will present on speech processing in the auditory cortex. Nov 21, 12 PM at the Fiber Optics Auditorium and Atrium, Busch Campus.
SASHP Video Production Team

Calling all photographers, videographers, graphic designers, video editors, and more! The SASHP Media Team is expanding and we would love for YOU to be a part of it! Members of the SASHP Media Production Team will be working alongside the Director of Creative Digital Content to create original video content for the education and entertainment of SAS Honors Program students. Click here for more information and to apply (deadline Nov 20).

Key into Public Service Scholarship

Have you served your community? The Phi Beta Kappa Society is a leading national advocate for the value of arts and sciences education. The Society is accepting applications for Key into Public Service Scholars. Phi Beta Kappa will select a national cohort of up to 20 liberal arts and science students who have demonstrated both interest in working in the public sector and academic excellence, with breadth and depth in the arts, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences, and social sciences. Visit www.pbk.org/PublicService to apply by Dec 31st.
