Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

What's the most fun thing you can do on a Friday night? Sing karaoke! All it takes is a speaker and something resembling a microphone for the singer. I've been singing with my cousins at family gatherings or with my friends at RU. There are so many songs to choose from, you never run out of options. Even if you don't know all the lyrics, you can still get the crowd to sing along with you. I also find that it gives me a little more confidence: giving a class presentation is a lot less nerve-wracking than singing off-key in front of a group! So if you're looking for something fun to do this weekend, give karaoke a try!

Here are some fun events coming up. Drop by Jameson H for a Galentine’s Day Party. Learn about the Gardner Fellowship program at the next Happening @ 35. Celebrate Black History Month by checking out a full list of university programming. Looking to study abroad? Check out the Study Abroad ESI Info Session. The RU Pre-Law Advising Program invites you to attend their Careers in Law Panel. Join the SASHP Peer Mentors for Bubble Tea and Trivia! Take your friends to the Honors Program Movie Night featuring Robot & Frank. Hear from award-winning author Garth Greenwell at the next installment of Writers at Rutgers. Show off your artistic talent by contributing to the upcoming Artists Collective Exhibit. Buy your ticket for the annual SASHP Winter Formal! Read about the lives of SASHP students in the most recent Honors Alumni Spotlight or Honors Blog Posts.

From all of us at the SASHP, enjoy the day!

With warmest regards,

Julianna Rossano
