Dear SAS Honors Program Students,

I hope everyone had a great first week here at Rutgers – Zoom University! To be perfectly honest, getting used to the detailed course requirements and long lists of modules has been stressful for me... and I’m sure many of us (professors included) share that sentiment. This entire semester is a big change — everything is new and it will take us all some time to adjust. Embracing that change isn’t easy, but hopefully we can take this new learning format as a chance to be creative with our education. Things like studying outside, spending time with friends, making your room into an office, or learning to make your favorite drink are all small changes that can make this semester feel more natural. Rutgers is a place to experience change like no other. And there is so much out there for those who look!

Here are some things on the horizon. Take over the SASHP Instagram for a week as an honorary HIPster. Join the SAS Artists' Collective for a laid back meet and greet to learn more about what they do and how to get involved. The SASHP media team is still requesting new blog writers: the application is linked below!

Warm Regards,

Add/Drop
Since the first week of classes has come to a close, remember that the add/drop period runs until Sep 11. If a class doesn’t seem right for you, there is no shame in considering dropping it in favor of another course!
Become a HIPster

From now until the end of the semester, apply to be a HIPster! HIPsters are given the freedom to do a complete takeover of the SASHP Instagram account for a week. Post whatever you want: polls, pics, boomerangs, videos, anything you feel shows your SASHP spirit. Be on the lookout for the application, opening next week.

Artists’ Collective Meet and Greet

Drop by for a laid back evening of conversation, questions, and meeting some really awesome people at the Artists’ Collective Meet & Greet on Wednesday, Sep 9, at 7pm EST via Zoom. To RSVP, fill out the form here. Follow them at @scarletartco or email scarletartco@gmail.com to keep up to date on future events!

Blog Writers: Wanted

Want to get involved with the team behind the SASHP? We’re still looking for a few more writers to create content for the Honors Program blog. Write one to two articles per month on any topic you feel relates to your college experience or student culture in general. The deadline to apply is Sept 14, fill out the form here!
